ORGANIC, BIODYNAMIC, NATURAL WINES....ENLIGHTEN ME !!!

- Spot the spots -

 Organic wines are broadly made without chemicals in the vineyard other than copper sulphate which is sprayed against mildew. The purpose of organics is to encourage life in the soil and biodiversity.

 Biodynamics takes this a stage further. It is based on a series of homeopathic preparations designed to revive and enrich the soil. Biodynamics is also about finding natural solutions to natural problems; it is holistic and pre-emptive and about discovering a natural balance in the vineyard. Biodynamic activity in the vineyard and the winery follows the lunar calendar.

 Natural wine is about making the fewest number of physical interventions during the winemaking process. This means fermenting with the natural yeasts in the vineyard (rather than bought-in yeasts), not practising temperature control, not adding acid, or sugar or tannins or flavouring, not filtering or fining, and adding the bare minimum (or zero) sulphur dioxide. Natural winemakers believe in the primacy of the vintage and letting the vinification take its course without chemical additions.

Note that Natural wines may taste differently from a bottle to another, it is the very purpose of the wine methods to let the fruit, terroir & nature express themselves.
